The story of All Saints'

All Saints' Church dates back to the twelfth century when it was built - along with its neighbour, St. Lawrence's - by the Benedictine monks of Evesham Abbey to serve the local people of Evesham. The Abbey was a victim of the dissolution of the monasteries in 1540 and only the Great Gateway and Bell Tower remain.

The two churches, which shared a churchyard, drew their congregations from different sides of the town, with St. Lawrence's initially being the richer of the two. Following the Reformation this changed as the western side of Evesham, associated with St.

Lawrence's, became poorer. In the Victorian period All Saints' moved to a high church tradition of worship, which attracted the wealthier residents, while St Lawrence's followed low church traditions. St. Lawrence's closed as a church in 1978 but is maintained by the Churches Conservation Trust.

All Saints' remains a beautiful medieval Church containing a wealth of architectural features and an in-depth guide to these and its history can be found on the information stand.
